Dama Brown and Dama Millerighe,
a Great Classic in Trendy, New Colours.

Being trendy while remaining true to oneself: this is the secret to the success of Dama Bialetti, the refined coffee maker designed by Pino Spagnolo, who became famous for the original and soft “elephant foot” form he created for the lower heating element of this coffee maker. Today, Dama is dressed in some extremely original colours with the launch of two new versions: Dama Brown and Dama Millerighe.

Dama Brown wears the warm, full-bodied and intense colour of coffee beans, enhanced by the chromatic contrast of a particularly sunny orange. The coffee maker thereby takes on a new, decisive look, almost as if it were covered in soft, precious velvet.

Dama Millerighe, instead, is offered in two different versions: one light and one dark. The central band, decorated with multi-colour vertical stripes, provides a touch of novelty and style, bringing a gust of original vivaciousness to both the stovetop and the table.

The design application adapts perfectly to both versions, thanks to alternating white and coloured lines, which create a skilful blend of contrasts and harmony with the dominating colours of the Dama coffee pot.

With renewed graphics, Dama Bialetti once again demonstrates its extreme trendiness and refinement, an exceptional gift for anyone who appreciates objects of unmistakable style, that at the same time are always novel.
